17:42:28 From Andy Schuster:
I like the heck out of it!

17:42:33 From Lan Brady:
looks good to me!

17:43:36 From Matt Harber:
or stain it all black...

17:43:37 From Gerald Avery, Winter Haven, Fl:
natural wood limb makes a good display. especially 2 or more levels

17:46:08 From Kade B:
wax the lathe bed way

17:46:56 From Kade B:
do you store wood in there?

17:48:20 From Matt Harber:
Wax comes off quickly. Humid here, you can't get the moisture out of the air.
I use Lami-Lube, I spray it on all rustable surfaces... first I clean, then take existing rust off with 0000 steel wool, then spray.

17:48:58 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, TX.:
maybe its condensation from the metal building

17:49:27 From Josh:
Rust Free and T9 Boeshield

17:51:10 From Dick Meuler - Des Moines, Iowa:
Slogan: Sharing Woodturning and Comradery

17:51:44 From Billy:
Johnson paste wax works for mine here in San Antonio. I apply it with 0000 steel wool every 3 months or so and it keeps the rust down.

17:52:04 From Chuck Slattery:
thanks everyone

17:52:40 From Bob Moffett - N.C.:
I spray my lathe bed with WD-40 and rub with Scotchbrite pad, then T-9 and rub with Scotchbrite and wipe off with paper towel.
Takes off rust and makes banjo slide easily.

17:52:41 From Jeff Mundkowsky:
Chuck, I lived in Sewanee TN for about 5 years. Kept a fan going in my barn, along with a small dehumidifier. Keep your green wood pile covered. Clean up shavings always, and wax the surfaces.

17:55:01 From Jeffrey Schnell NJ:
<https://www.hobbylobby.com/Crafts-Hobbies/Dollhouses-Miniatures/Miniatures/Miniature-Birds/p/21868>

17:56:46 From Steve Maikell:
or dye from Tandy Leather looks good

17:56:52 From Chuck Slattery:
i tried wd 40 this week lol and it made it worse. i went back to furniture wax.
i think ill try the fan and look into the different oils and waxes to see what 1 works best.

18:00:18 From Dan Rozell:
Chuck, I am in Oklahoma, real humid. I have good luck with Johnson Paste Wax.
I've used it for years on all machined surfaces and have had good luck.

18:02:07 From Gerald Avery, Winter Haven, Fl:
thankyou all for good conversation and encouragement. Good night all.

18:02:31 From Billy:
G'night, Gerald

18:03:30 From Dan Rozell:
I wish my internet would allow me to talk and share. I am a new (2 month) turner.
I, by choice am working on a mini lathe and make a ton of small items. I love creating things and at the same time, I am learning how each tool works. I think when Spring time hits and I get a full size lathe, I am going to have a blast having learned the smaller skills first.

18:03:56 From Don Wilson:
Don Wilson, I have one

18:05:09 From Jason Collett:
I got a bottle opener

18:06:51 From Dan Rozell:
My facebook page is DRozDidIt, I share a lot of my learning projects.

18:07:22 From Jeff Mundkowsky:
I have one more - For Halloween

18:07:59 From Andy Schuster:
last time I got a 2x4 it cost me 8.79 each! I get oak of a sawmill for .50 bf

18:19:30 From Andy Schuster:

that was the local builders supply in western pa

18:24:17 From Brent Sobotka, Buffalo, WY:

I don't know about that. I turned cottonwood yesterday. the shop still stinks!

18:24:35 From Dan Rozell:

I just donated over 200 replica c9 bulbs that I made from old shipping wood to my local elementary school! Wood is everywhere!

18:24:50 From Matt Harber:

I LOVE cottonwood! Soft and stringy, but burns and carves nice!

18:26:21 From Brent Sobotka, Buffalo, WY:

Would anyone like to talk about tool rests for a minute?

18:32:47 From Ron Vincent:

I have 3 home made that are not hardened

18:34:32 From Patrick Hoggard:

I have made several tool rest out of cold roll.

18:34:36 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, TX.:

onlinemetals.com is a good place to go to.

18:41:44 From Dan Rozell:

In my 16 years, I never had a 1SG so cool....

18:44:13 From Doug Rowe not the real Kim Tippin :

Thanks Dan. Life is to short to not have fun.

18:45:08 From Dave - Crescent City:

Good night

18:45:13 From Ron Vincent:

night everyone

18:45:31 From Billy:

Another great, folks! Night, everyone!

18:45:38 From Dan Rozell:

Thanks everyone!

18:45:40 From Martin Clarkson:
good night guys thanks for a great night
