There are several different species of cottonwood. Some are great for woodturning. Some cracks easily, some are difficult to turn. Mike Mahoney turned a lot of cottonwood (a.k.a. Mormon poplar) when he lived in Utah.

17:25:52 From Doug Rowe out in Arizona to Everyone:
I have to leave early tonight. That dang college stuff is getting in the way again. Great seeing you all.

17:25:56 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, TX. to Everyone:
it figuring out how to connect your camera to the TV or tablet

17:27:10 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
The camera normally used with these systems is a car backup camera.
They hook up directly to a simple monitor. So all you then need is a power supply.

17:28:02 From Kade Bolger, Ontario, Canada to Everyone:
You could also use a web cam of amazon

17:28:05 From Paul Hannaby - www.creative-woodturning.com to Everyone:
some of those reversing cameras are wireless too so less leads to deal with!

17:28:34 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
Here's another guy with an inexpensive system, around $90 complete.
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Cc4xOgznmBc>

17:28:43 From Kade Bolger, Ontario, Canada to Everyone:
web can hooks in to the USB of your laptop, tablet, or monitor

17:29:18 From Ron Vincent Wildwood, FL to Everyone:
Grand river wood turners Doug;s email is grwtg2008@gmail.com

17:29:19 From Gerald Jensen to Everyone:
The kitchen TV mentioned above has both USB and HDMI inputs ... may be able to connect camera direct to TV.

17:29:55 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
There are more videos on YouTube about how to build these systems, including links to equipment.

17:30:33 From Steve Maikell to Everyone:
They are like the Trent Bosch visualizer

17:31:12 From Alfred Schembri to Everyone:
what size monitor are you using?

17:32:18 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
I believe the car backup monitors are 7". I believe that Doug Brinks from Grand Rapids has upscaled his monitors to 10".

17:33:43 From Steve Maikell to Everyone:
some monitors let you draw on them

17:35:52 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
Typically, if you are drawing on the monitor, it's a good idea to tape a piece of plastic over it, to protect it. You can use dry erase markers.

17:36:41 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
These systems are typically sold as hollowing aids - and you mount them on your hollowing rig and trace around your hollowing tool. This allows you to follow the tool inside the piece.

17:37:29 From Dan Rozell - Claremore, OK to Everyone:
Tres - are you as satisfied with your turning using the monitor as you would be with paying 100% attention to the wood and your tool ?
Or are you only using the monitor for final dimensions and a guide?

17:39:10 From Louie Shull to Everyone:
how do I record this

17:39:35 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
It is being recorded, and will be posted on our YouTube channel in a few days.

17:40:06 From Kade Bolger, Ontario, Canada to Everyone:
I dont believe you can. But we do have a YouTube account and it will be uploaded shortly after this meeting.

17:40:12 From Louie Shull to Everyone:
thanks

17:40:18 From Eddie Castelin to Everyone:

18:06:31 From huck joe kansas to Everyone:
Thanks Tres for another GREAT demo. You never cease to amaze me.

18:07:39 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
Kim, I don't hink so.... we are using these as cameras. You could use a projector in the traditional sense of the original Lucida devices, to project an image onto your wood...

18:19:08 From gary in Oklahoma City to Everyone:
For computer geeks, to generate that clear film for duplicating objects, you can use Inkscape, import any picture and use the trace options to create a line drawing that can then be tweaked to your liking. Then print the output on printer clear film. Done!

18:19:50 From Matt Harber - Highland, MI - Detroit Area Woodturners to Everyone:
Thanks, Gary. I love Inkscape, very useful. Especially their
