For food handling items: Tried & True Original. Non-Food: Rattle Can Lacquer over a stain. Sanding sealer: DEFT Sanding Sealer.

16:44:23 From Steve Lackscheide to Everyone:
Mostly Ack's Abrasive/Polishing pastes or OB Shine juice

16:44:40 From Andy Schuster to Everyone:

16:45:14 From Don Wilson Georgia to Everyone:
I use 3408 80% of the time

16:45:26 From Matt Harber to Everyone:
Finish: Minwax Helmsman's Spar Urethane, clear gloss. spray rattle can.
I build thin coats and sand with increasingly higher grits until I get the finish the way I like it. Usually at least 8 coats, sometimes as many as 15.
Minwax Wipe-On Polyurethane, spray and liquid. Spray lacquer....
Same process for all of them.
And I buff (Beall, 3 wheel system).

16:46:01 From Charlie Bundy Grand Rapids, Mn. to Everyone:
Generals bowl sealer

16:47:16 From Robert Hodge to Everyone:
hut wax sticks do work quick and easy. I'll use them on weed pots occasionally or other small craft fair items.

16:47:23 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, Texas to Everyone:
starting to like Parfix 3408 real well.. Lacquer never seems to dry. I tried Krylon crystal clear is working better for me. Things don't stick as bad to the base

16:48:37 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, Texas to Everyone:
Parfix is a one and done very quick finish

16:48:47 From Andy Schuster to Everyone:
Ive used that also, but the wax doesn't seem to hold up to much handling

16:49:23 From Billy Burt - Alamo City, Texas to Everyone: Depends!
1) Food safe: Only pure tung oil (NOT tung oil finish) or mineral oil.

- 2) Natural look (non-gloss): Howard Feed-N-Wax.
- 3) Gloss finish for light colored woods: Deft gloss spray lacquer.
- 4) Gloss finish for darker woods: Minwax Antique Oil

16:49:53 From Ronald Todd to Everyone:

Been using General Finishes wood bowl finish a lot lately and haven't had a bit of trouble so far. Some times I do do a shalac finish on live and natural edge pieces.

16:50:22 From Joe Channey to Everyone:

I have a turning to share.

16:50:27 From Dane Chandler -Tucson AZ to Everyone:

3408 Parfix, SparVarathane, tung oil & wop. don't like laquer as it is not durable & it has nerve toxins in it.

16:50:51 From Bob Moffett - N.C. to Everyone:

I have a piece to show

16:50:54 From Robert Hodge to Everyone:

Ronald, I've used that as well and it worked good but it did turn bad in it's can after a while.

16:52:44 From Robert Hodge to Everyone:

What tool brand was that gouge?

16:54:45 From Scott Tague Wisconsin to Everyone:

I make my own food safe finish from dewaxed super blonde shellac Everclear alcohol mineral oil.

16:59:18 From Dane Chandler -Tucson AZ to Everyone:

unless you dont use his tools & use his competitor he has a derogatory sore-a$$ to you.

ACK'S PASTE is food safe too! I like using it myself!

17:56:47 From Norman Lanford to Everyone:

Mike Peace has a video where he gives a recipe for abrasive paste. I followed it and it works perfectly, just like Doug is showing for about 25% of the cost of the commercial pastes. I even make batches that I give to my club where they sell them at half of the commercial price and the club makes a few bucks and the members get a product that works.

17:58:01 From Tim Hatch Bastrop, TX to Everyone:

Yep .. your right Norman, I use it myself...got a small crockpot to make small batches

17:58:30 From Heather Spiritwynd to Everyone:

MinWax WipeOn Poly Satin

18:27:00 From Gerald Jensen to Everyone:
Finish depends on the type of turning. If it is a utilitarian piece that will be used with food, I generally use Tried & True Original. Decorative pieces I usually use one of the Minwax wipe-on polyurethanes. Shiny sells, so most of the decorative pieces get a gloss finish.
