I was in metal shop class in high school & the one girl (who took the class just to meet guys) kept taking her hair net off... her hair got caught in my lathe's headstock... I hit the power switch and at the same time grabbed a metal cutter and hacked 3 times - she had butt length gorgeous blond hair and ended up with nothing. :(

17:13:07 From Tim Hatch Bastrop, TX to Everyone:
Thanks Sue

17:13:16 From Matt Harber to Everyone:

If you have problems with glue causing the wood to slide around, sprinkle a few grains of salt (literally half a dozen) into the glue - the salt is sharp enough to dig into the wood yet will dissolve into the glue before it dries.

17:19:47 From brenda thornton greenville ohio to Everyone:
I use salt when gluing too

17:27:47 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, Texas to Everyone:
nice tip Jim

18:08:56 From Michelle's iPad to Everyone:
Can we see a better picture of that tool? It was off screen. Thanks (both of those tools he mentioned earlier)

18:12:39 From John Scelfo New Jersey to Everyone:
I find that using the carbide on a slight angle works better for me!

18:17:38 From Cap'n Eddie Castelin, moderator to Everyone:
the angle of the cutter is very important, a slightt
angle will provide a slicing cut, really nice.

18:18:46 From Tim Hatch Bastrop, TX to Everyone:
Nice looking bowl... the ring tool for the economy bowl would be a good technique to limit the swarf of the walnut or other expensive woods... just a thought... 3/4 inch ring glued on the bowl blank might save some money and accomplish something similar...

18:19:51 From Billy Burt - Alamo City, Texas to Everyone:
I was thinking something similar, Tim

18:28:56 From Jim to Everyone:
I might be crazy, but didn't he use the same compartment on the pallette for both the glue & paint?

18:31:59 From Jim to Everyone:
Also, the chemical of Glue-All and regular white glue is both polyvinyl acetate - they just changed the name of the same product for marketing purposes.

18:34:09 From Lan Brady to Everyone:
very nice effect!

18:34:50 From Bob Grinstead - Mansfield, Texas to Everyone:
looking good Scott

18:35:17 From Matt Harber to Everyone:

Elmer's Glue-All

- 18:36:10 From Tim Hatch Bastrop, TX to Everyone:
Interesting technique.. can see the applications for a lot of things
- 18:36:19 From Matt Harber to Everyone:
Yep, it works in a similar fashion
- 18:36:39 From John Scelfo New Jersey to Everyone:
You can buy crackle paint!
- 18:37:20 From Matt Harber to Everyone:
One of the fun things to do with this is to air-brush over the crackle medium, to get some interesting effects.
- 18:37:27 From Michelle's iPad to Everyone:
Do you seal?
- 18:37:49 From Matt Harber to Everyone:
Yes. Light coats of spray lacquer.
- 18:38:16 From Matt Harber to Everyone:
☺
- 18:38:34 From Ronald Todd to Everyone:
Very nice demo tonight Scott.
- 18:39:09 From Matt Harber to Everyone:
First base coat can be any acrylic paint. Gotta let it dry, before going with the crackle medium. Walmart also sells acrylic paints - same thing I used with the dots.
- 18:39:19 From Joe Duncan to Everyone:
thanks for the demo scott
- 18:40:41 From Jim to Everyone:
Thank you for the demo Scott - it's very interesting to me that something as simple as a differential in drying time between two mediums can create such an interesting effect.
- 18:40:56 From John Scelfo New Jersey to Everyone:
Thanks Scott!
- 18:41:12 From Tim Hatch Bastrop, TX to Everyone:
Thanks Scott
- 18:41:23 From Scott Tague Wisconsin to Everyone:
